JUNE WEDDINGS.

TRIPLETS WEDDING.

'One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place at St. Mary's church Thursday morning June 14, when Miss Nellie Didier, of Fond du Lac, was united in marriage by Rev. Francis.

The altars were beautifully decorated in white carnations, palms and ferns. The bridal party entered the church and marched to the altar rail while Lohengren's wedding march was played. The young couple were attended by Miss Estelle Didier, sister of the bride; Miss Mae McDonald; Mr. Howard Treleven, of Fond du Lac, brother of the groom; and Mr. Russell F. Didier, brother of the bride. The bride was given away by her brother. She wore a princess gown of white crepe de chene over white silk trimmed with Irish point lace, and carried bride roses. The bridesmaids wore white embroidered swiss over pink silk trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and carried pink roses.

The bride's wedding ring was the one worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Michael Didier, at her marriage ceremony half a century ago.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Catherine Didier, where an elaborate 12 o'clock breakfast was served to the family and a few intimate friends. The dining room was handsomely decorated in bridal wreath and white roses, the tables being most deftly in garlands of amaranth and white roses, while the parlors were decorated in carnations and American beauties.

The young couple were the recipients of many dainty, useful and beautiful gifts in furniture, silver, cut glass, Haviland and hand painted china.

Mr. and Mrs. Treleven left on the 12:22 p. m. train for a two week's trip through the east, after which they will be at home in Fond du Lac.

Miss Didier has spent most of her life in our city, graduating from our high school in 1900. She is a young lady of rare accomplishments, a sunny disposition, and is beloved by all who have the pleasure of her acquaintance.

Mr. Treleven is no stranger here, having made this city his home for about three years, and has a host of friends here. At present he holds a responsible position with the Wisconsin Central R'y Co.

Among those from out of town who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Treleven Sr. and Howard Treleven of Fond du Lac, parents and brother of the groom, and Mrs. H. H. Ober, of Minocqua.

STEEL'S WEDDING.

A beautiful June wedding took place on Tuesday, June 12, 1906, when Rev. George Hirst, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Waupaca, united Miss May Edward Gordinier and Mr. Henry Francis Steele, the wedding taking place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Jeffers, aunt and uncle of the bride. About seventy people, relatives and immediate friends of the bride and groom were present.

At the appointed hour the bride appeared on the arm of her father, Mr. G. S. Gordinier, who stepped forward and gave the bride away. The bride and groom stood under a fairy bower of flowers and vines in one corner of the parlor. Little Miss Marion Steele, a cousin of the bride, preceded the wedding party bearing the wedding ring which Rev. Hirst used in the beautiful Episcopal service of the marriage ceremony.

The bride was gowned in Eolian which was trimmed with white lace—her own handwork—and she wore a necklace of white pearl beads.

After the ceremony and congratulations were over elegant wedding refreshments were served by ten young ladies, "girl friends" of the bride. The table decorations were amaranth and "American beauty" roses and the bride's cake was decorated with bride's roses. Other decorations about the rooms were American beauties, pink peonies, plants and ferns.

A beautiful array of presents were bestowed upon the happy couple which included silver, cut glass, china, cabinet, rug and many other things.

They left on the four o'clock train for the East where they will visit Niagara Falls and other places of interest for about two weeks and then return to their future home in Rhinelander where Mr. Steele has a law practice and is also city attorney of Rhinelander.

Mrs. Steele is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Gordinier and she has always been a general favorite with all who knew her for her ladylike, winning ways and lovely character. Her husband has been here many times and all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance appreciate his worth as a man, socially and intellectually. Both have the best wishes of all for a happy married life.—Waupaca Republican.

STORY OF DEATH OF SIEGFRIED.

The last of the series of Siegfried stories will be told next Saturday morning at the library at 10:30. Children have found these stories most interesting and should not fail to hear about the death of their hero.

DONALDSON-COLE.

A wedding that took place at Denver last Wednesday was of more than ordinary interest to Rhinelander people inasmuch as one of our young and successful business men took unto himself as a life partner one of Denver's fairest and most accomplished daughters.

The ceremony that united Miss Leona Cordell Cole and Mr. Carl H. Donaldson, was performed at high noon June 12th at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. H. M. Stone. The ceremony was performed under a shower of palms by the Rev. Bayard Craig of the Christian church and was the Episcopal ring service. The bride was given away by Mr. H. M. Stone. The wedding march was sung by a quartette. The decorations were green and white.

The bride wore a traveling gown of gray tulle and carried a bouquet of Easter lilies. The matron of honor, Mrs. H. M. Stone, wore white embroidered batiste and carried pink roses.

After the wedding breakfast the young couple departed on a short wedding journey to Colorado Springs, Colorado, and came to this city via Minneapolis. They are now nicely located in their own home in this city.

A FINE SINGING.

The annual meeting of all committees of the Zion Lutheran church was held at the church last week. Reports showed the church to be in excellent condition financially, with an increasing membership.

The new church which was completed last year was found to have cost about two hundred dollars less than the estimate. Under the pastorate of Rev. Dr. Jung the church is forging ahead, and in a short time it is expected it will be out of debt.

ODAYAH DEFEATED.

The Olanah baseball team met its feather, Sunday, at the hands of the local team by a score of 13 to 11. The Olanah team is partly composed of Indians. Despite the hot weather and the dust a fair sized crowd witnessed the game.

NO SERVICES SUNDAY.

There will be no services in the Zion Lutheran church next Sunday as Rev. Dr. Jung is in attendance at the synod convention in Milwaukee. In case Rev. Dr. Jung is absent longer than one Sunday his father will occupy the pulpit in his stead.

HOME KILLED BEEF.

E. C. Vessey received a shipment of cattle from points west along the Soo line last week which will be slaughtered here and disposed of to local dealers.

MARRIED TUESDAY.

At St. Mary's church, Tuesday morning, Father Francis united in marriage Mr. Olanah Bolonga and Lester Spaulding two young people of the west side. Both are well known and have many friends in the city.

LICENSED TO WED.

The following marriage licenses were issued during the last week by County Clerk W. W. Carr: Henry Winkquist and Emma Grill, city; Matt Solerlund and Mary Helman, city; Lester Spaulding and Odaline Bolonga, city.

RETURNS FROM PANAMA.

Mr. and Mrs. George Whitney of Christobal, Panama, arrived in the city Friday morning for a visit with relatives. Mr. Whitney is taking an annual vacation of six weeks allowed him by the government from his duties of locomotive engineer on the Isthmus. They report conditions on the Isthmus as much exaggerated. They have enjoyed good health and are much pleased with the country, and intend to return and remain there until the work is finished. While in the state they will visit at Tomahawk and Green Bay before they return.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE QUEEN OF MOONSHINERS PUZZLES U. S. OFFICIALS

Authorities Feel They Must Have Recourse to Strenuous Action to Restrain Betsy Simms.

YOUNG, FEARLESS, AND IDOL OF OUTLAWS

In Prison for Dealing in Whisky That Had Paid No Revenue, She Severely Cuts Jail in Attempt to Escape—Three Indictments Now Against Her.

Much as has been written of the ways and doings of the moonshiners of North Carolina, any person at all familiar with the lives of the inhabitants of that mountain region cannot but feel that the half has not been told.

Loyal to a degree that holds life worth nothing if a friend can be served, an enemy punished or a traitor put to death, the moonshiner is typical of a state of existence the world has long outgrown.

The average man of more sedate temperament and cooler blood leaves the avenging of his wrongs to courts of law and the judgment of his fellows, but in the mountains each man is a court of law unto himself, and is not satisfied with the slow methods of justice with which other communities are content.

It has been found a matter of monumental difficulty to impress upon these people that there is wrong in the making of "moonshine" whisky. To them the product of the corn they grow is theirs, whether it is converted into the stuff of life or the delectable liquid of the worm and still. The efforts of the "revenuers" to put a stop to the distilling of the juice of the corn necessarily, therefore, are not looked upon with favor, and conflicts with the officers of the law are frequent. Just now the federal officials have a complication to deal with which is more than usually knotty.

"Queen" Now in Jail.

"The best looking gal in the mountains," Betsy Sims, "Queen of the Moonshiners," is languishing in the big and handsome jail at Columbus, the high-up little mountain town which is the county seat of Polk, one of the smallest and most isolated of the North Carolina counties. What to do with her is the problem puzzling the authorities.

Betsy, though only 22, is as daring and well versed a woman, both in the ways of making whisky and of self-found at the home of a moonshiner not far from the little town, brought back and tried, and the judge decided to make an example of the bold young creature by sending her to jail at Columbus for four months.

Astonished the Moonshiners.

The moonshiners were simply paralyzed by the sentence, for some of them thought that Betsy bore a charmed life, so to speak, and one of them, in an outburst of admiration, had said on the third day that she would "come clear," and that "no judge an' no jury can teach her, in my mind." But Betsy had not quite reached the limit of her resources. The jail at Columbus is an old-fashioned barn of a structure, three stories high and of brick, and is generally stilly tenanted. It happened that when Betsy first entered its walls a man was there on his way to the penitentiary to serve 12 months for the practice of the gentle art of manslaughter, he having in some kind of mix-up slain a fellow-moonshiner with a knife, and "gittin' off light," as the other side of the case put it. Betsy was put on the second floor of the jail, this prisoner, whose name is Chalmers, being on the floor above. A rather rude sign of steps leads from the second to the third floor, through a well-locked trap-door of wood.

How She Broke Jail.

The weather was cool, and there was a fire in Betsy's room. She did not feel equal to the task of getting out of jail unaided, so she sought the companionship of Chalmers. They talked to each other, commonplace while the jailer was anywhere within hearing, but business when he was out of the way, the business being the best means of getting out. Betsy was the more resourceful of the two, and so, taking a "chunk of fire," she went up the five times. He was compelled to knock her down and then to tie her hands and feet.

"The matter was at once reported to the judge, who ordered that she be placed in the strongest cell and closely watched, and at the next term of court she will be indicted for an assault with intent to kill, not to speak of another indictment for attempt to escape. Some of her moonshiner friends have in a quiet way made threats that she will not stay in jail long, but the county authorities say they can hold her.

Betsy's exploit in the jail has given her an added importance and value among her associates.

The Vacation System and Business

By CHARLES F. PIDGIN.

The term "business" must be used to include all financial, commercial and industrial enterprise, and when so used it covers a very large field. Into this field the system of summer vacation may be said to have penetrated to a comparatively slight extent. The great mass of working people do not in any large measure enjoy vacations, except such as they take with loss of pay.

In some degree, however, this question is kindred to the question whether shorter hours and better conditions for labor have had a good or a bad effect on business. The answer to this question, of course, is easy, because the figures are at hand to prove the increased productivity of the American workman in the more favorable environment.

Still the direct question of how business has been affected by the summer vacation system admits also of a direct answer. It may be said decisively that it has not hurt business wherever it has been tried.

If it has not been tried on a very extensive scale, speaking comparatively, it yet has been tried on a sufficiently extensive scale to prove its merits. In the case of the salaried clerk distinct benefits undoubtedly have followed the introduction of the summer vacation system.

In the first place, the person who looks forward to a vacation has constantly in mind a goal at the end of which is a certain prize. Other things being equal, the position that offers him a vacation offers to him a distinct attraction. He aims to retain that position during the months preceding the vacation season, and he looks forward to the prospect with pleasurable anticipation. It is often a joy that lightens toil.

The employer himself, I think, is ready to testify that he is the better off, as well as the employee, for the rest and recreation that the employee obtains on a vacation. A tired employee may be as ineffective as a lazy one, and the wise employer appreciates this fact.

Again, there is an economic advantage in the present vacation system, because it tends to take so many thousands of people out of the city every year for a period of two weeks or more, who distribute their expenditures in travel and in country places, which are developed in many ways by the money that the summer visitors bring.

The summer visitor has been the builder, to a great extent, of prosperous towns and communities, that but for his visits would have remained undeveloped.

Travel is a good thing for the traveler, for the railroad, and for everybody whom the traveler meets or with whom he sojourns.

This is a phase of the summer vacation system that has been of distinct advantage to business.

HE RAN FOR LAWYER.

But There Was a Doubt as to Whether He Had Ever Caught
the Office.

A man from Pennsylvania went to Vineland on a business errand. The town was strange to him, and he was unacquainted with the man (a lawyer) he had gone to see. The directions he received were so indefinite that he found himself on the edge of the town without having come to the house he sought. Then he met an old negro and asked the way of him and learned that the house lay about a quarter of a mile farther down the road.

"The man I want to see is a lawyer," he said to the old man. "Is this Mr. Dash down the road a lawyer?"

"He ain't no lawyer that I ever heard tell of," answered the negro.

"You're sure?"

The old negro scratched his head in deep thought. Then a gleam of remembrance lighted his eye.

"Now I think of it, boss," he said, "pears like I do recollect he ran for lawyer one time."

CHILD'S AWFUL SKIN HUMOR.

Screamed with Pain—Suffering Nearly Broke Parent's Heart—Speedily
Cured by Cuticura.

"I wish to inform you that Cuticura Remedies have put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot, and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, itched, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard downstairs. The suffering of my son made me feel of misery. I had no ambition to work, and by the time I could sleep was insupportable, and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial. I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold, and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent, my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is fine and smooth as silk. Michael Sigmund, 123 Madison Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 15, 1925.

GOTHAM GHOST.

In New York city there is one policeman to each 459 persons.

New York's cemeteries, with their 2,165 acres of land, are sufficient for the burial of the city's dead, at the present death rate, for 150 years.

Since Peter Minuit, in 1624, bought Manhattan island from the Indians for $24 in merchandise, there has been a daily average of 39 persons arriving in the territory now known as New York city.

If the sewers of New York city were placed end to end in a straight line they would reach from here to Pike's Peak, 1,710 miles, and the paved streets of the city would make a road along one side of them all the way.

If the wind that blew over New York city in one week recently should continue its way, at the average velocity, it would make the circuit of the earth and be back there the last week in August, for it moved at the rate of nine miles an hour.

BABY READ ABOVE THE COVERS

When the early beams of morning
Spreading over fields and streams
With its golden touch awoke me
From the misty land of dreams—
Half a-dream and half a-bewildering
I can see a baby's head
Just above the snowy covers
Of a little cradle-bed.

Still in slumber-land, my baby
Countless miles from me—
What are all the happy visions
That your slumber eyes can see?
What are all the happy visions
That your slumber eyes can see?
Tripping through that little head
Just above the snowy covers
Of our baby's cradle-bed.

Little head above the covers
Brightened by the morning glow,
Time and tide may wait between us
As the fingers of the dawn
Working dreams and plans may enter
To disturb that little head
Just above the snowy covers
Of our baby's cradle-bed.

Little head above the covers
Though the sun was warm and gay
And your childhood days and years
Like a sunbeam from the grass
All the years of your childhood
That happy days and years
Just above the snowy covers
Of this little cradle-bed.

A Midnight Tete-a-Tete

By CATHERINE STONEMAN LONG

It was really midnight, but Mrs. Burdick still sat at her desk writing. It was very quiet in the library save for the sound of her pen, which went scratching briskly across the page.

At last, with a sigh of relief, Mrs. Burdick threw down her pen and pushed her paper aside. After a moment she looked at her watch. It was ten minutes past midnight. She sighed impatiently, glancing at the clock. "That is what it means to be the wife of a traveling man!"

The air of the room was heavy, with the perfume of some hyacinths that by, and she was thoroughly tired. A delicious sense of drowsiness began to steal over her.

Suddenly she became vaguely conscious of a change in the conditions surrounding her, and became at once wide awake.

Then there came to her ears a sound of stealthy footsteps on the bare floor of the adjoining room. They came nearer, then paused a moment, and a cautious hand was laid upon the knob of the door behind her.

Mrs. Burdick was not a particularly courageous woman, and a cold perspiration started out upon her body, but she turned her chair swiftly about to face the intruder.

In the doorway stood a man. In his hand he held a revolver, the shining length of which he was pointing directly at her, while he fastened upon her a cruel, triumphant gaze.

"Good-evening," he remarked, pleasantly, looking the interloper squarely in the eyes.

"I suppose you called to see my husband? I am sorry he is not in. I am expecting him in a short time, however, on the Fast Mail. Perhaps you will be seated and wait until he arrives."

The man laughed aloud. "Well, you are a game one," he said, "and no mistake. But that's too thin. You don't expect him at all to-night. I took pains to make sure that he wouldn't leave New York until to-morrow morning."

"Oh, very well," said she quietly, although her heart was thumping wildly. "Since you didn't call to see him, perhaps you wouldn't mind telling me what is your business here?"

"Not a bit," said the man. "I'm after your diamonds and your silver. I'll thank you to show me where they are—the quicker the better—and then I'll skip out before the night watchmen comes along this way."

"And if I refuse?" she asked steadily.

The man tapped his revolver significantly. "It would be better for you not to," he said.

Mrs. Burdick made no further remark, but sat leaning back in her chair, looking curiously at the man, who stood quite near her.

"Well," he said at length, with a surly frown, "why don't you start? What's the matter with you?"

"Oh, nothing," said she. "I was only looking at you, and I must say I am surprised."

"Why? Because you don't look at all as I expected you. I've looked for you under the bed every night for a good many years, and I always thought you would be a sort of villainous-looking fellow, with matted black hair and dirty hands. But you—why, you look almost like a gentleman!"

A wave of hot color swept over the man's sallow face. "How do you know but what I have been one and am one yet?" he asked sarcastically, laying the revolver upon her desk against which he leaned with folded arms.

"Maybe you've been one, but you're not one now, gentlemen," said Mrs. Burdick laughingly. "don't wear their hats in the presence of ladies, nor bring mud into their houses on their feet," she added, glancing with indignation at his dirt-caked shoes.

The burglar removed his hat and carefully scattered over several pieces of mud and threw them in the grate.

"Besides," she continued, her rising wrath sweeping away her fear, "no gentleman would come in my house at midnight, demanding my private property. How dare you do such a thing, sir! You've no business to have my things!"

"I have got just as good a right to have nice things as you have, only I haven't been so lucky as to get them the way I'd like to. Tint my fault that I have to get things this way. The world owes me a living, and I'm going to have my share," he continued doggedly.

"It seems to me that a smaller share got in a safe and respectable way would be more satisfactory than a fortune gained in such a risky—er—profession as yours."

"It may be risky, but it isn't any worse than the board of trade," said the burglar meaningly, "and it's just about as honest, too. That's where your father got the money he gave you to build this house with."

Mrs. Burdick flushed angrily and opened her mouth for an indignant response, but she thought better of it. The next moment she laughed good-naturedly, and said: "Well, you seem to know all about my private affairs, and are as plain-spoken as I am myself. We'll not try to discuss the matter, please. As you know, I was just thinking about your wife. I should think it would be quite unpleasant for her to have you away so much at night and never know whether you are going to come home with your full share or be landed in the police station."

"My wife?" said the burglar. "Oh, she don't mind. She's in the same business herself."

"Oh, I see! And have you any family?"

"One. Boy just past four."

"And is he a burglar, too?"

"Well, I should say not," said the man with indignation. "You ought to see the kid. I tell you, he's as high-toned a little chap as anybody. He goes to kindergarten, and we keep him dressed up all the time, and you bet, he don't train with everybody's young ones, either. We're bringing him up straight, we are, and after a while we're going to quit and live different and take him in good society."

"That will be nice," said she, nodding her head approvingly. "I'm glad to hear you talk that way. We all want our children to have something better than we have ourselves. I'm always interested in people with children. We have a boy, too, and that's the way we feel about him. He's not as old as yours nearly, but he is such a darling! You ought to see my baby! He's the handsomest little fellow, and unusually bright for his age. He's only ten months old, and he has six teeth, and says 'Papa' already."

"I'd like to see him," said the burglar with interest. "I'm awful fond of children, but I guess you'd better not disturb him."

"No; I think I won't. He's afraid of strangers, too. Do you drink tea?" she asked suddenly.

"When I can't get anything stronger."

"Well, I think I'll make some. I've been writing on 'Food as a Moral Agent' for our Woman's club, and I'm rather fatigued. I always have a cup for Mr. Burdick when he comes in, and a sandwich, too; but since you say he's not coming to-night, we'll not wait. If you will have a seat, I shall be pleased to serve you," she added politely.

She arose from her chair and went over to the pretty wicker tea table with its handsome service, and drew it out in front of the grate. The burglar watched her suspiciously for a moment or two, and his hand stole toward his revolver; but finding that she set herself to making the tea with evidently no other intention, he sat down close to the little table.

Mrs. Burdick glanced demurely at him from under her long eyelashes, and said smilingly, as she held the sugar tongs poised above the dainty Syren cup, "One lump, or two, Mr.—?"

"Smith," responded the burglar, after a few moments' hesitation. "Two, if you please, but no cream."

She handed the cup to him with all the grace and courtesy with which she would have served a prince. Then she took a cup herself and sat down with it in her revolving desk chair. Both slipped their tea in silence. The burglar gazed thoughtfully into the grate, and the lady watched him curiously. How thin he was, poor fellow, and how sad and tired his eyes were!

"No man that loves his child so tenderly can be wholly bad," she thought. Once he looked at his silver spoon critically and watched it upon his finger.

"I'll never see that again," she said to herself. But he laid it back on his saucer, and, taking a last draught, turned toward her.

"Another cup?" she asked hospitably. "No? Perhaps you will smoke?" pushing toward him Mr. Burdick's generously filled cigar-holder.

"Thanks," he responded gravely and with an air of reproach. "Gentlemen never smoke in the presence of ladies."

"Fairly caught!" exclaimed she, laughing softly. "Well, then, if you will not smoke, or drink any more tea, please tell me how you came to be a burglar?"

"It's a long story, and it isn't a very pretty one," said the burglar.

Suddenly a sharp, trilling whistle was heard outside, directly under the window. He started to his feet, and looked at Mrs. Burdick.

"That's my husband," she said quietly. "He always whistles that way to let me know that he is here. You see, you were mistaken and I was right about his coming."

The revolver lay upon the desk within her reach. He made a rush for it, but she was too quick for him. She had taken it and was holding it behind her. She held up the other hand warningly.

"You can take it from me, of course, if you try," she said, "but I wouldn't if I were you. Mr. Burdick is always armed when he's out late at night. He's quick-tempered, too, and somebody might get hurt. I'm fond of him, and I should feel badly if he should be the one; and you—well, you know, you have the kid."

There was a jingle of keys over her head, and in another moment the door opened and Mr. Burdick came in to the room.

"Good-evening, John," said his wife, in a voice which sounded somewhat cold and hysterical. "I'm glad you're home. It's been a long evening, but I haven't been lonely. I've had a friend with me. This is Mr. Smith. My husband, Mr. Burdick. Mr. Smith. He's just going, John. You must thank him for helping me to spend a pleasant hour. Will you show him to the door, my dear? Good-night, Mr. Smith. Remember me to the kid."

Mr. Burdick, marvelling much, did as his wife requested. When he and the burglar had exchanged the civilities of parting, and he had closed and locked the door after him, he turned to his wife for an explanation of this curious happening. But where she had stood there was only a scarlet heap upon the floor. Mrs. Burdick had fainted at last.

MAN IN THE COPPER BOX.

"Respiration Calorimeter," an Apparatus for the Study of the Human Body.

Some interesting deductions have been announced recently in regard to the study of the human body which has been going on for some time at the Middletown (Conn.) experiment station in co-operation with the federal government, says Country Life in America. Persons experimented on are put up for a week or more in a "respiration calorimeter," which is an airtight copper box large enough to hold a man in comfort for several days. The chamber contains a folding bed, chair, table, etc., and ventilating pipes. A man is put into the room and then watched. Everything he consumes, his food, water, air, is carefully measured beforehand, and likewise everything he gives out. It would seem as if he could hardly think without the mental effort being measured and received in calories of heat. The air he has breathed is passed through purifying vessels which remove the carbon dioxide and whatever else his lungs have put into it. The deposit is then weighed. It would have been impossible to light a match or burn a candle in the respiration chamber during the experiment, yet the subject, who was purposely not told anything about it, read, slept, ate his meals, conversed with his friends over the telephone, and, in fact, seemed in the best of spirits during the 24 hours the air was maintained in the above condition.

JOHN HAY AS JOURNALIST.

Few newspaper writers have brought to their task the equipment which Hay possessed when he came to the "Tribune" in the winter of 1870, writes Joseph Bucklin Bishop in "A Friendship With John Hay." After passing through the great period of the civil war as the private secretary of President Lincoln, he had served successively as secretary of legation at Paris, charge d'affaires at Vienna, and secretary of legation at Madrid. He spoke several of the languages of Europe as fluently as he spoke his own, and he had that minute knowledge of their art and literature that only a born lover of art and literature can attain. One has only to read his "Castilian Days" to realize the full meaning of what he wished to convey when I say this. His conversation was literally a "joy forever," then as always. I have heard many good talkers in my day, thank God! but never a better one than John Hay.

Scarcely less enjoyable than his talk was his writing. He wrote mainly upon foreign affairs, political, social, and literary; and whatever he wrote, intellectual men everywhere, who read it talked about. "Like whatever he did, then and throughout his life, he put his full powers. He was preeminently a good workman; he would do nothing except his best. But while he always did his best, he never made the mistake of taking journalistic work too seriously. He had the rarest grace of humor, without which no journalist can hope to attain the largest measure of power and usefulness."

PREDICTIONS BY MACHINE.

Contrivance Used by Coast Survey at Washington Performs Unique Service.

A machine that prophesies is an engine in use by the coast survey at Washington, D. C., which can and does predict the time of high and low tide for a given locality, and makes these predictions for a year in advance. Its performance is not limited to a year, but that is the maximum of work it is usually called upon to do. It is compact and delicate to a degree not easy to appreciate. To make these tidal predictions, which are issued in the form of a fat book of tablets every year by the survey, the machine in first set, then operated by hand. As may be surmised, the setting of the machine is the point at which accurate mechanism and the human brain join forces. There are 19 factors to be determined in making tidal predictions. Each factor alters all the rest. Hence the machine is so constructed that an alteration of one factor has its effect on the others. How this is done is understood in a measure by noting that there is a setting of 19 disks, with pointers. Each pointer is on a pulley mounted eccentrically on its shaft, and over this pulley passes a chain which goes from one to another. Obviously, if the eccentricity of one pulley is altered it has its proportionate effect on all the rest. The engine was invented by Prof. William Ferrel, who presented it to the government without charge for his idea. It cost originally but $2,500 and does the work of 40 expert computers.

Magnitude of Deposits in Texas Give the Commonwealth That Distinction.

The new Granite state of Texas, whose magnitude of granite deposits probably outrank those of any other state. It could with equal fitness be styled the foremost cattle state, and judging from its famous undeveloped iron ores, it may become a center of metallurgy. With but a fraction of its acres devoted to grain, it produces nearly 200,000,000 bushels a year of wheat, corn and other grains. On 15,000,000 acres it is annually growing nearly $200,000,000 worth of agricultural products. Texas is an empire with less than one-tenth of its area under cultivation—a fraction so small that it might be cut off one side the state without being missed from the other; with a population of 3,000,000, and easily able to support 20,000,000, with a variety of soils, suitable for every crop from that of the tropics to that of the higher altitudes of the temperate zone, with great water powers yet untapped; with a wealth of mineral resources defying description, a beauty of mountain scenery unknown and unappreciated by the world at large, and a charm of climate unsurpassed in the United States, varying from cold regions like the north-west to sunny areas where roses bloom throughout the winter.

Only Born King.

There is a fact about King Alfonso well worth knowing. Of all the kings who have ever lived, with the sole exception of Jean I. of France, who lived but a few hours, he is the only one to be a king from the moment of his first breath—a veritable "born king." And since he is much spoken of these days it is not amiss to know his name, which is, his Most Catholic Majesty Don Alfonso XIII, king of Spain, of Castile, of Leon, of Aragon of the two Sicilies, of Jerusalem, of Navarre, of Gibraltar, of the Western and Eastern Indies, of the Oceanic Continent, archduke of Austria, duke of Burgundy, of Brabant and Milan, count of Hapsburg, of Planters, of Tyrol and grand master of the Golden Fleece. This is not really all, but it is a good deal to live up to, even for a king.

Telephone Age.

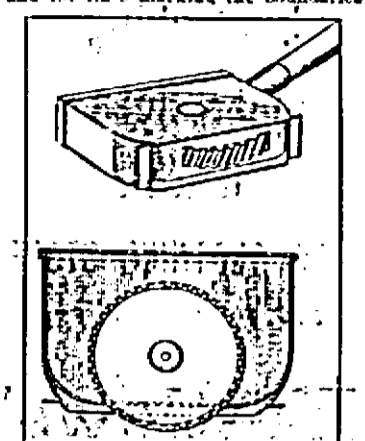

The telephone is the electrical triumph of 1905. Its last year's growth has been unprecedented. It has been much greater than was dared to be forecast from the most favorable reports of the previous year. In New York city alone there has been an increase of about 75,000 instruments. The telephone is now recognized as an essential part of the furnishing of every hotel and of the better equipped department houses. It is now thought necessary that a building of this kind should be fitted with a private exchange and an instrument placed with each suite. This development is typical of that in all large cities.

LAWN TENNIS MARKER.

Makes Easy the Marking Out of the Court in Narrow But Heavy White Lines.

No branch of sport has increased in popularity more than lawn tennis, which is at last receiving the recognition that it deserves. To play the game properly it is necessary that the ground should be level and well rolled, and the lines marking the boundaries clear and distinct. Tapes, which are often used, are a nuisance, and are not to be compared to lines marked with lime directly upon the gravel or grass. One of the latest machines devised for marking out tennis courts is shown in the illustration, says the Philadelphia Record. It consists of a casing made of tin or other light metal and has a hinged lid, through which it can be filled with powdered lime, with which the lines are made. The sides and end of the casing extend slightly below the bottom, forming flanges. These flanges travel near the ground, their object being to prevent the wind from blowing away or scattering the lime as it is laid out by the marker. A wheel is journaled within the casing and extends through an opening in the bottom of the casing. The rim of the wheel is corrugated obliquely and fits closely in the opening. In descending the corrugations on the wheel carry small charges of powder out through the opening. The corrugations being oblique, any lumps or obstructions in the powder will be deflected to one side. After the casing has been filled with powder, the handle is grasped and the machine carried to the point of use. Therefore the marker is pushed along over a string or toward a given object. If the user's eye be true, and the result will be that a narrow, but heavy white line will be formed on the ground. As the marker progresses, contact with the ground causes the wheel to rotate, the corrugations drawing out the powder.

Odors Are Gas.

If odors were solid particles they would tend to form nuclei of cloudy condensation in super-saturated air. Dr. John Aitken has tested musk and 23 other odorous substances without finding such nuclei, and he concludes that odors are gaseous and that smell has gas as its fundamental basis.

The celluloid wind screens of automobiles give great risk of fire. Very fine copper gauze is said to have proven a satisfactory substitute, being easily seen through and non-inflammable, while it does not crack like celluloid.

The English say he was born in Northumberland; the Scotch allege he was born at Dunelm, in the Merse, the neighboring county of Northumberland, and hence he was called Duns Scotus.

He died at Cologne, November 8, 1308. His fame was so great that when at Oxford 20,000 scholars attended to hear his lectures.

ELECTRIC TEMPERING.

Simple Methods of Applying the Correct Degree of Temperature by Means of Current.

The following simple methods of tempering and annealing tools have been described by J. M. Gladhill. By using the electric current for the heat, we can easily carry out the operations, and the temperatures can be regulated to the right point. One of these apparatus is represented in Fig. 1. It consists of a sheet of iron tank of suitable size containing a concentrated carbonate of potash solution. The tool to be tempered is mounted in an appropriate socket or holder which is connected with the positive pole of the dynamo. The circuit is closed by the metallic tank. Switches and regulators are placed in the circuit. The tempering operation is carried out in the following manner: The circuit being closed, the tool is plunged slowly into the bath so as to dip the part which is to be tempered. This part heats up under the action of the current. When the right temperature is judged to have been reached, the current is broken suddenly and the tempering takes place in the liquid of the bath. The electric arc may also be used for the same purpose. Fig. 2 shows the arrangement which is used in this case. The tool to be tempered is placed upon a support of fireproof material which is also a poor conductor of heat, and the arc is started at first at a low tension between the portion of the tool which we desire to temper and a carbon electrode placed near it. The tension is increased by working a rheostat until we obtain the necessary heat, but overheating or melting of the tool is avoided. As a source of current we use a direct current dynamo which will give a tension varying from 50 to 150 volts. The dynamo is operated by an electric motor working at 220 volts. In this way it is possible to produce areas varying from 10 to 1,000 amperes by working the rheostat which the exciting current of the dynamo carries. The electric method can also be used with success for annealing. This applies to tools of special form such as gears, dies, and in general to all tools where we need to have a hard temper on the outer part while the inside has a great tenacity. Generally the annealing is carried out by introducing a heated rod into the hollow tool. But this process is defective both on account of the difficulty of keeping up the temperature for a long enough time and also from the cracks which may occur from a too rapid heating up. With the electric process which we illustrate below, such accidents are not to be feared, since the rod is introduced when cold and it is heated up gradually. We are thus able to keep the temperature at the right point during the whole time which the annealing requires. The apparatus is represented in Fig. 2. We employ a transformer which lowers the tension of the alternating current to two volts. The secondary coil of the transformer is formed of a copper bar of large section which is connected to each end of the form carrying the tool. We regulate the strength of the current and consequently the temperature of the holder by the use of a rheostat, and thus we can obtain a perfect adjustment of the temperature during the process.—L'Electricien.

This is the title of one of the most unique summer outing booklets of the year, which tells of the beautiful Northern Minnesota country and the splendid resorts in this pine forest region. It also tells the quaint Indian tale of how Kah-be-loon-o-ay, the Winter-Maker, descended the sheltering forests and brought great evil to the villages of the Ojibwees. It is sent free on request to W. H. Gemmell, General Manager, Minnesota and International Railway, 205 Northern Pacific Building, St. Paul, Minn.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by Andrie & Hlman.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

In committee of the whole the house by a vote of 110 to 31 voted in favor of a lock canal across the isthmus of Panama.A meat inspection provision was completed by the house committee on agriculture and will be presented to the house for action at once, which it is declared by the committee will insure that American meats and meat products are healthful, clean and in every respect wholesome and fit for food.President Roosevelt notified Chairman Wadsworth of the house agricultural committee that the substitute to the Beveridge amendment was "totally inadequate in its entirety." He asserted that while he might approve the agricultural appropriation bill he would attach to it a memorandum declaring the meat inspection provision to be insufficient. Such action would continue the present agitation and certainly would not tend to restore confidence in the products of the packing houses.The president in a letter to Chairman Wadsworth said almost every change in the house meat inspection amendment was for the worse as compared with the senate amendment, and in his judgment, so framed as to minimize the chances of rooting out the evils in the packing business.Regarding the meat inspection legislation, Speaker Cannon gives it as his opinion that safe and sane legislation will be enacted and that, notwithstanding differences on the matter of judicial review, everybody's constitutional rights will be protected.By the terms of the conference report on the statehood bill adopted by the senate, Indian territory and Oklahoma are to be admitted to the union as one state under the name of Oklahoma.The bill amending the national banking law with senate amendments was concurred in by the house by a vote of 125 to 70. It provides that a national bank may loan to a single borrower a sum not in excess of 10 per cent of its capital stock.The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill as finally approved by both houses of congress raises Brazil and Turkey to embassies.

DEATH OF GOV. PATTISON.

The Chief Executive of Ohio Passed Away after a Lingering Illness.Cincinnati, O., June 12.—John M.
Pattison, governor of Ohio, died at his home in Milford, a suburb of this city, yesterday afternoon. He passed a good night and there was no report of any serious change during the day.
During the afternoon the news was considered favorable and the news of his death came without warning.Governor Pattison entered upon the responsibilities of his office in a somewhat weakened condition, the strain of the political campaign having so worn on him that a trip to the South was taken in November and December in the hope of regaining health. However, when he returned he was still weak, and under the advice of his physician, his part of the inauguration ceremonies was gone through with the utmost care.John M. Pattison, boy, soldier, lawyer, state legislator, member of congress and governor of Ohio, was a native of Clermont county, Ohio. Born June 11, 1817, he enlisted as a volunteer in the United States army when but 16 years in 1841. He was admitted to the bar in 1852 and elected to lower house of the Ohio legislature in 1853. He became a member of the Ohio senate in 1893 and was elected to the Fifty-second congress.He was a lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal church.Columbus, O., June 12.—The news of Governor Pattison's death casts gloom over the state capital.By the death of Governor Pattison, Gen. Andrew L. Harris, of Eaton, O., becomes the acting governor.General Harris is a Republican, Governor Pattison having been the only Democrat on the state ticket elected last fall.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

A Small Boy and his Dog Wanders Around in the Forest for Four Long Days.Chisholm, Minn.—After having been lost in the big woods for four days, John Nihilsky, a ten-year-old boy, has been restored to his parents. He was found by a woman living near the Kinney mines, three and a half miles northwest of Hubli and nine miles from Chisholm. A posse of fifty men had been scouring the country for three days but they had discovered no trace of the missing lad and all hope of finding him alive had been abandoned.When discovered the boy was gnawing a crust of bread which he had found and was in a terrible state as a result of hunger and exhaustion. The boy's clothing was torn to tatters by the briars and brambles and his bare legs were scratched and bleeding. He was desperately hungry and about to fall from exhaustion and loss of sleep.Mosquitoes had harassed him so continuously day and night he got but little rest, and his hands, face and legs were blistered and poisoned from the bites of the ravenous insects. He met no wild beasts in his wanderings but during the nights he often heard the howling of the timber wolves.

Fireworks Fire.

Minneapolis.—Luther Ford's fireworks factory started in to blow up.
About that time six workmen employed at making skyrocket, roman candles, devil chasers and such stuff as fires are made of, started for the nearest exit in sight, and windows were as good as doors.A box of caps it is believed became spontaneously ignited. When it let go, some of the rockets joined in the commotion, and then the roman candies got busy.The engine companies got to the seat of trouble soon enough to stop the spread of the explosion among the rockets and candles. But water did heavy damage to the Fourth of July supply.

Signaled Death.

Eveleth, Minn.—William Jeffries
was instantly killed at the Hull pit, where he was employed as a brakeman.He was standing on an embankment near the track and gave the engineer the signal to come ahead. After the train had passed, Jeffries' dead and horribly mangled body was found on the track, the entire train of ore cars having passed over it.It is supposed that after giving the signal to come ahead the brakeman slipped from the bank on which he stood and fell in front of the cars.

Church Burglaries.

La Crosse, Wis.—Burglars broke into the three largest churches at North La Crosse and carried away everything of value, the churches being stripped of decorations and gold vessels. Two of the churches robbed were Catholic and one was Lutheran. Several thousands of dollars' worth of plunder was taken and the interior of the buildings were torn to pieces by the vandals.

Iron Ore Found.

Elk River, Minn.—A valuable deposit of iron has been found in the township of Santiago, Sherburne county, and J. E. Riley has disposed of his farm for $15,000, nearly half of which already has been paid down.The purchasers are Charles E. White and E. L. Crozier of Monticello, a man by the name of John Monk.Agents of the Rockefeller interests were down from Duluth and it is said attempted to head off the deal, but found themselves a few days too late to accomplish any thing.

Eaten by Wolves.

Duluth, Minn.—The search for W.
H. Gray, who has been missing in the woods at Mile Post 61 for ten days has been abandoned, and the searchers are of the opinion that the man's body has been devoured by wolves. Ten men and a half dozen hounds have been scouring the country in the neighborhood of the place where Gray was seen last, but found no traces of the missing man."Doc" French, who headed the searching party, returned with tidings that the country had been searched but no trace of body found.

Interesting Happenings in the Various Cities and Towns of the State.

Companies Perpetually Enjoined.

Milwaukee.—A formal decree was entered by W. H. Seaman, United States circuit judge, against the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit company, the Pere Marquette railroad company,
the Erie Railroad company, the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad company, the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad company, and the Wisconsin Central Railroad company. The decision in the case was handed down by the United States circuit court about a week ago.The decree restrains and perpetually enjoins the Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit company, its agents and representatives, from any way soliciting, accepting, or receiving, and the defendant railroad companies from paying or giving any rebates or concessions whatever.It is ordered that the plaintiff recover costs.The decree recites that payment by the railroad companies to the refrigerator company of percentages and commissions other than reasonable mileage for the use of its cars is unlawful.The decree is dated June 11 and is signed by W. H. Seaman, United States circuit judge.

Rodd, Peshtigo; treasurer, Harriet T.
Purcell, Beloit; chaplain, Ella Grim, Hartford.The retiring president, Miss Fannie McAllister, Omro, was elected chairman of the executive board.

Cremated Human Body.

Appleton.—The jury and auditors at the Kabal murder trial were surprised when Dr. John Golden, of Chicago, testified to burning a human body January 23 on the McCarthy farm, in order to demonstrate that a body could be cremated with a bonfire, as it is alleged Kabal cremated the body of Mc-Carthy. Golden testified that the body cremated by him was that of a man about the size of McCarthy. The cremation was under precisely the same conditions as it is alleged accompanied the burning of McCarthy's body.
The cremation was witnessed by District Attorney Krugmeyer, Chief Consultant, Dr. Nolan, Attorneys Ryan and a cigar box of ashes remained.

Refuse to Ask Resignations.

Fond du Lac.—The county board of supervisors of Fond du Lac has refused absolutely to comply with the recommendations of the grand jury in demanding the resignations of M. Thelen and H. B. Landall as trustees of the county insane asylum and poor farm. The district attorney was called before the board to tell what the charges against the two trustees are,
but he said that he could divulge none of the testimony that was given before the grand jury. The supervisors feel that the trustees should know what they are charged with in order that they could offer some defense, and in view of the fact that no specific charge was made by the grand jurors they refused to ask them to resign.

May Prosecute Politicians.

Kenosha.—In compliance with the state law, City Clerk George W. Harrington turned over to the district attorney the names of 29 politicians who have made no return of expenses at the last city election, and it is expected that prosecutions will be started. The district attorney stated that the law demands that he bring these people before the court.

Wisconsin Masons Choose Officers.

Milwaukee.—Dr. E. J. Farr, of Eau Claire, was elected grand master of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Wisconsin. He succeeds Jesse C. Bradley, of Milwaukee, who has held this office during the past year. Spencer M. Marsh, of Nel-lsville, was elected deputy grand master.

Fire Chief Suspended.

Green Bay.—Fire Chief William Kennedy was suspended by the city commissioners on the charge of accepting a bribe from Charles Johnson in the purchase of fire appliances from the Seagrave Co., of Columbus, O.

Municipal Ownership Wins.

Washington.—At a special election held in this city, Martin M. Sweet was elected Mayor by a majority of 205 votes over Elmer B. Kenfield. Sweet stands for municipal ownership of public plants.

New Fond du Lac Rector.

Fond du Lac.—Rev. Edwin S. Roland, rector of the Church of the Redemer at Cairo, Ill., has been elected rector of St. Paul's cathedral in this city, to succeed Rev. J. G. H. Barry, who has resigned to become the dean of the Nashotah Theological seminary.

Car Builder Killed.

Oshkosh.—Charles E. Johnson, a car builder for the Winnebago Traction company, was killed. He missed his hold on the front platform rail.

PECK'S BAD BOY WITH THE CIRCUS

By HON. GEORGE W. PECK

Author of "Peck's Bad Boy Abroad," Etc.

Pa and the Bad Boy Stop Off at a Lively Western Town—Pa Buys Mining Stock and Takes Part in a Rabbit Drive.

Well, we are on the way back home, after having engaged Indians, cowboys, rough riders and highway robbers to join our show for next season. Pa felt real young and lively when we came to the railroad, after leaving our robber friends at the hole in the wall, far into the mountain country. We came to a lively town on the railroad, where every other house is a gambling house, and every other one a plain saloon, and there was great excitement in the town over our arrival, "cause there don't seem to be many rich and prosperous people stop there."

Pa had looked over the money the robbers had given him, to throw it away, because it was old-fashioned confederate money, when he found that there was only one bundle of confederate money, and the rest was all good greenbacks, the bundle of confederate money probably having been shipped west to some museum, and the robbers having got hold of it in the dark, brought it along. Pa turned up the bad money at the hotel, and said he would stay there a few days and rest up, and incidentally break a few bad banks, by a system, the way the smart sleeks break the bank at Monte Carlo.

I teased Pa to take the first train for home, so we could join the circus before it closed the season, and he could report to the managers the result of his business trip to the west, but Pa said he had heard of a man who had a herd of buffalo on a ranch not far from that town, and before he returned to the show he was going to buy a herd of buffalo for the cowboys and Indians to chase around the wild west show. I couldn't do anything with Pa, so we stayed at that town until Pa got good and ready to go home. He bucked the faro bank some, but the gamblers soon found he had so much money that he could beat any bank, so they closed up their lay-outs and began to sell Pa mining stock in mines which were fabulously rich if they only had money to develop them. They asked some mines near town for Pa to explore, and when he found that they contained gold enough in every shovelful of dirt to make a man crazy, he bought a whole lot of stock, and then the gamblers entertained Pa for all that was out.

They got up dances and fandangoes, and Pa was it, sure, and I was proud of him, cause he did not lose his head. He just acted dignified, and they thought they were entertaining a distinguished man. Everything would have gone all right, if it hadn't been for the annual rabbit drive that came by while we were there. Part of the country is irrigated, and good crops are grown, but the jackrabbits are so numerous that they come in on the plains adjoining the green spots, at night, and eat everything in sight, so once a year the people get up a rabbit drive and go out in the night by the hundred, on horseback, and surround the country for ten miles or so, and at daylight ride along towards a corral, where thousands of rabbits are driven in and slaughtered with clubs. The men ride close together, with dogs, and no gully rabbit can escape.

Pa thought it would be a picnic, and so we went along, but Pa wishes that he had let well enough alone and kept out of the rabbit game. Those natives are full of fun, and on these rabbit drives they always pick out some man to have fun with, and they picked out Pa as the victim. We rode along for a couple of hours, pushing rabbits by the dozen, and they would run along ahead of us, and multiply, so that when the corral was in sight ahead the prairie was alive with long eared animals, so the earth seemed to be moving, and it almost made a man dizzy to look at them.

The hundreds of men on horseback had come in close together from all sides, and when we were within half a mile of the corral the crowd stopped at a signal, and the leader told Pa that now was the time to make a cavalry charge on the rabbits, and he asked Pa if he was afraid, and wanted to go back, and Pa said he had been a soldier and charged the enemy; had been a politician and had fought in hot campaigns; had hunted tigers and lions in the jungle, and rode bare-backed in the circus, and gone into lions' dens, and been married, and he guessed he was not going to show the white feather, chasing jackrabbits. They could sound the bugle charge as soon as they got ready, and they would lead him in the game till the curtain was rung down.

That was what they wanted Pa to say, so, as Pa's horse was tired, they couldn't get a horse too fresh for him, and he got on to a spunky pony, and I noticed that there was no bit in the pony's nose, but only a rope around the pony's nose, and I was afraid something would happen to Pa. I told him he and I better dismount, and climb a mesquite tree and watch the fun from a safe place.

Pa said: "Not on your life; your pa is going right amongst the big game, and is going to make those rabbits think the day of judgment has arrived. Give me a club."

The leader handed Pa an ax handle, and when we looked ahead towards the corral where the rabbits had been driven, it seemed as though there were a million of them, and they were jumping over each other so it looked as though there was a snow bank of rabbits four feet thick. When Pa said he was ready a fellow sounded a bugle, and Pa's pony started off on the jump (for the corral, and all the other horses started), and everybody yelled, but they held back their horses so Pa could have the whole field to himself.

Go, but I was sorry for Pa. His horse rushed right into the corral amongst the rabbits, and when it got right where the rabbits were the thickest, the darn horse began to buck, and Pa was in the air just as though he had been thrown up in a blanket, and he came down on a soft bed of struggling and scared rabbits, and the other horsemen stopped at the edge of the corral and watched Pa, and I got off my horse and climbed up on a post of the corral and tried to pick out Pa. Then all the hundred or more dogs were let loose in amongst Pa and the rabbits, and it was a sight worth going miles to see if it had been somebody else than Pa that was holding the center of the stage, and all the crowd laughing at Pa, and yelling to him to stand his ground.

Well, Pa swung his ax handle and killed an occasional rabbit, but there were thousands all around, and Pa seemed to be wading up to his middle in rabbits, and they would jump all over him, and beat him with their tails, and the dogs would grab rabbits and shake them, and Pa would fall down and rabbits would run over him till you couldn't see Pa at all. Then he would raise up again and maul the animals with his club, and his clothes were so covered with rabbit hair that he looked like a big rabbit himself. He lost his hat and looked as though he was getting exhausted, and then he stopped and spit on his hands and yelled to the rest of the men, who had dismounted and were lined up at the edge of the corral, and said: "You condemned loafers, why don't you come in here and help us dogs kill off these vermin, cause I don't want to have all the fun. Come on in, the water is fine," and Pa laughed as though he was in swimming and wanted the rest of the gang to come in.

The crowd thought they had given the distinguished stranger his inning, and so they all rushed in with clubs and began to kill rabbits and drive them away from Pa. In an hour or so the most of them were killed, and Pa was so tired he went and sat down on the ground to rest, and I got down off my perch and went to Pa and asked him what he thought of this latest experience, and I began to pick rabbit hairs off Pa's clothes.

"I'll tell you what it is, Henner," said Pa, as he breathed hard, as though he had been running a foot race, "this rabbit drive reminds me of the way the rich corporations look upon the poor people, just as we look upon the jackrabbits. We pity a single jackrabbit, and he runs when he sees us, and seems to say: 'Please, mister, let me alone, and let me nibble around and eat the stuff you do not want, and we drive them into a bunch, the way the rich and mean iron-handed trusts drive the people, and then we turn in and club them with the ax handle of greed, and we keep our power over them, if enough are killed off so we are in the majority, but the jackrabbits that escape the drive keep on breeding, like the poor people that the trusts try to exterminate. Some day the jackrabbit and the poor people will get nerve, enough to fight back, and then the jackrabbit and the poor people will outnumber the men who fight them and kill them, and they will turn on the cowboys with the clubs, and the trusts with the big head, and drive those who now pursue them into corners on the prairies and into penitentiaries in the states, and those who are pig-headed and cruel will get theirs, see?'"

I told Pa I thought I could see, though there were rabbit hairs in my eyes, and then I got Pa to get up and mount his horse, and we rode back to town with the gang, while the 5,000 rabbit carcasses were hauled to town in wagons and loaded on the cars.

"Where do you send those jackrabbits?" asked Pa of the leader of the slayers, as he watched them loading the rabbits.

"To the Chicago packing houses," said the man. "They make the finest canned chicken you ever eat."

"The devil, you say," said Pa. "Then they were working all day to make packing houses rich. Wouldn't that skin you?"

Then we went to the hotel and I put contraband on Pa where the rabbits had scratched the skin off, and Pa arranged to go out next day to the ranch where the herd of buffaloes live, to look for bigger game, for the show, though he would like to have a rabbit drive in the circus ring next year if he could train the rabbits.

"Mammy," Wouldn't Tell. On his native heath down in "Ole Virginia" there is nothing the average dandy resents so vigorously as impertinence on the part of one of the race. A regular "fo-de-wah mammy," known by young and old as "Aunt Prudy," was toiling up a long hill near her cabin home with a huge basket of clothes on her head, when she was stopped by a little pickaninny sitting on the fence who yelled in a shrill voice: "Whar yuh goin', Aunt Prudy?" Aunt Prudy turned slowly, and, with frown to make a statue thrill, thus addressed the little negro: "I see gwine whar I see gwine, dat's whar I see gwine. Yellah brat a-tellin' on de fence axin' me whar I see gwine! I see gwine whar I see gwine, dat's whar I see gwine, an' down yuh ax me no mo' whar I see gwine, kase I ain't gwine to tell yuh!"—Baltimore Sun.

He Surprised Eliza. A story is going the rounds of the territory press of a farmer, living a few miles from Henryetta, who wore his old suit until everybody was tired of it, and his estimable wife was almost astounded of him. But one day, when selling produce in town, he determined to buy a new suit, and a happy thought struck him. He would surprise Eliza. So he bundled a new suit into the wagon, hurried toward home, and at the bridge, two miles from town, he stood up in the wagon and "peeled" and threw the despoiled old suit into the creek. Then he reached for his new clothes. They were gone—had bolted out of the wagon! The night was cold, and his teeth chattered as he scurried for home. He surprised Eliza even more than he anticipated.—Kansas City Journal.

heart-shaped holes in the corners, glued colored pictures that came with valentines and tea and such things, on this, put borders of lace paper, that was used on the inside edges of fancy boxes then as today, around the pictures and hand-painted little verses on them.

The valentines found ready purchasers, and soon business men in New York and other cities began to order them for the next year. Four

State Capital Notes

Weekly Budget Gathered by Our Special Correspondent at Madison.

Madison.—The largest railroads of the state are to be given "another chance" to show that a two-cent fare would be disastrous. Supplementary hearings will be granted by the railroad rate commission. While a continued correspondence has been carried on with the roads relative to these rates, details have arisen which will ultimately mean that additional hearings must be granted. No definite time has been set as to when the hearings will take place, but it will follow after the commission have made a thorough investigation of the matter. The two-cent rate in Wisconsin involves millions of dollars and will be probably months before the commission will have an opportunity to have sifted the statistics to come to a final decision. From the present outlook only the larger roads will be asked to appear again. The points upon which the commission are undecided and which the railroads will be asked to answer will be formulated questions prepared by the commission. The rate commission has under consideration at this time the grain rates in Wisconsin and the cheese rates in the southwestern part of the state.

Judge Urges Radical Reform. W. H. Timlin, who in a commencement speech at Ripon, Wis., advocated the placing of a limit on the wealth an individual or corporation may acquire and the barring of rich men from the United States senate, was elected a member of the Wisconsin supreme court at the recent election and will take his seat in the fall. The justice-elect is 54 years old, was admitted to the bar in 1877 and is the head of the law firm of Timlin & Glicksman, of Milwaukee. He has practiced extensively before the Wisconsin supreme court, his work there running through the last 20 volumes of Wisconsin reports. His parents were farmers who died while he was an infant and he has raised himself to his present position through his own efforts.

Work on Dam to Be Rushed. Contractors are in Madison to deposit bids on the new dam across the Wisconsin river at Kibbourn. The entire undertaking will represent an outlay of a million dollars or more, and when completed will be one of the largest business ventures in this part of the state. It surely will mark the beginning of an epoch in manufacturing enterprise at the village of Kibbourn, and many towns near by are expected to couple up for the power generated. Portage, Baraboo and Reedsburg already have spoken for a bit, while Madison ought to get what it needs. Concrete is the material of which the dam is to be built, and when it is in working order from 10,000 to 12,000 horsepower will be available. For all the late start, Mr. Spooner says he hopes the heavy wall will be completed by February, 1907.

Crop Report Issued. The crop estimating board of the department of agriculture issued the following crop report: Spring wheat—Condition "B"; acreage, 17,599,000. Winter wheat—Condition "B"; acreage, 10,000,000. Oats—Condition "B"; acreage, 27,688,000. Barley—Condition "B"; acreage, 133,600 more than last year.

State Bank Authorized. State Bank Commissioner Bergh approved the articles of incorporation of the Hazel Green State bank, located at Hazel Green, Grant county. Its capital is $10,000 and its incorporators are R. M. Orchard, O. A. Eastman, M. E. Grindell and 13 others.

May Weather Unfavorable. In the state the temperature for May was 3 degrees below the normal and the precipitation was 57 of an inch below the normal. According to the secretary of state's crop report, the weather was not favorable, especially for wheat and corn. The average condition of wheat in the state is 75 and of corn 90. The acreage of potatoes planted, compared with an average, is 32. Frost during the month diminished the prospect for the fruit crop throughout the entire state.

Seek Dental Certificates. Judge E. Ray Stevens, in the Dane county circuit court heard arguments in the suit for damages brought against Wisconsin and the state dental board by 18 dental graduates of the Milwaukee Medical college, to compel the board to issue them certificates to practice in the state. The damage suit is to force the state to reimburse the plaintiffs for expenses in fighting the state dental board. The court took the case under advisement for decision in a few days.

University Aquatic Events. The two crews that will represent Wisconsin and the western colleges in the annual eastern regatta on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie Saturday, June 22, will doubtless be the last for a good many years to come, if not forever. Wisconsin is this year making a last desperate effort to make a creditable showing in eastern waters. With the establishment of rowing as a college sport at the University of Chicago there will be possible the forming of a western regatta for which Wisconsin has long prayed.

University Summer Session. The appointment of Prof. John H. Latane, of Washington and Lee university, Virginia, as professor of political science in the summer session, completes the arrangement for the eighth summer session of the University of Wisconsin to be held June 25 to August 4. Prof. Latane, who is a distinguished student of American diplomacy, fills the vacancy caused by the appointment of Prof. Paul S. Reinsch as a delegate to the third Pan-American conference at Rio, a position which will occupy Prof. Reinsch during the entire summer. The courses offered by Prof. Latane include a series of lectures on the larger problems of diplomacy, including timely subjects as "The Hague Court and the World's Peace Movements," "Chinese Exclusion and Trade Relations," "Fordable Collection of International Debts," and "The Present Status of the Monroe Doctrine."

University Newspaper Course. The training of students for newspaper work is a new field of activity which the University of Wisconsin has entered upon during the past year, and which is to be developed and extended next year. While there have always been a number of students in the university preparing for journalistic work, no particular provision has been made for giving them practical training in the details of newspaper work until the beginning of the present year. At that time a course in newspaper writing was offered in the English department, and was elected by some 30 students interested in journalism. As a result of the enthusiasm manifested in this new work, a University Press club was organized with a membership of 50. For next year a four-years' course has been outlined for students preparing themselves for a journalistic career.

Prohibition State Convention. The Prohibition state convention adopted a resolution calling on Senators Spooner and La Follette to vote to expel Reed Smoot. The platform committee split on woman suffrage, the majority report being silent, while the minority report favors woman suffrage. The platform denounces high license, favors a county option law, government ownership of public utilities, and regulation of corporations. The following ticket was nominated: Governor, E. L. Eaton, Madison; lieutenant governor, A. F. Fehldt, West Salem; secretary of state, J. E. Clayton, Milwaukee; attorney general, H. E. Vankuren, Oshkosh; insurance commissioner, Lincoln Abraham, Bloomington; state treasurer, W. D. Emerson, Emerson.

State Nativity Statistics. The second census bulletin giving a compiled statement of the nativity statistics of Wisconsin has just been completed by the census department which does its work under the direction of the secretary of state. It shows the total native born population to be 1,737,007, and the foreign born population to be 503,312 which is an increase of 131,561 in the former and a decrease of 11,029 in the latter. The statistics indicate that of the native born population 1,485,153 are natives of Wisconsin and 251,854 are natives of other states, principally east. In the first instance there is an increase of 138,667 and in the latter a decrease of 8,942 as compared with the statistics issued in 1900.

Licensed to Transact Business. The New Jersey Fire Insurance company, No. 205 Market street, Camden, N. J., was licensed to transact business in Wisconsin by Insurance Commissioner Host. James McElroy, Jr., of Baltimore, Md., is president and William H. Stoop, of Philadelphia, Pa., is secretary. The company has a capital stock of $200,000 and surplus of $20,000. It was organized last month.

New Insurance Company. The national Manufacturers' Mutual Insurance company of Janesville, Wis., filed articles of incorporation with the insurance commissioner. They were approved. The capital stock is $100,000. The officers are: P. J. Kress, president; R. L. Jones, vice president, H. J. Cunningham, secretary; A. E. Brigham, treasurer.

House Will Not Talk. Secretary of State Houser said that he had no statement to make to the public at this time regarding his arrest on the charge of having attempted to bribe Commissioner Host. "I have nothing to say in regard to the matter," was his reply to an inquiry as to whether he desired to make a statement to the public.

To Get Farmers' Institutes. "Any farmer or public spirited business man in Wisconsin who wishes to secure an institute for his locality during the winter season of 1906-07," says George McKerron, superintendent of Madison, "should send to us for a blank petition and letter of information. Any town, no matter how small or how far from the railroad, is entitled to an institute, provided it is located in a farming district and has a good hall in which a meeting can be held."

University Aquatic Events. The two crews that will represent Wisconsin and the western colleges in the annual eastern regatta on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie Saturday, June 22, will doubtless be the last for a good many years to come, if not forever. Wisconsin is this year making a last desperate effort to make a creditable showing in eastern waters. With the establishment of rowing as a college sport at the University of Chicago there will be possible the forming of a western regatta for which Wisconsin has long prayed.

PERPLEXED HOSTESS.

SOME SUGGESTIONS THAT MAY PROVE OF HELP.

The First Year Comes the Cotton Wedding—May Be Made a Gay Affair—Some Astrological Lore.

The "Cotton" Wedding. One year of wedded life brings the "Cotton" anniversary, and it may be made a most attractive affair. Soon after the original ceremony it will probably not be a difficult matter to arrange for a reunion of the bridal party, and this alone will make the occasion a memorable one. Send the invitations on squares of fine cotton cloth written with indelible ink.

Decorate the rooms with vines, plants and branches. Over these put a quantity of fluffy cotton flakes. Portieres and window drapes are effective made from strips of white cotton. If cards are to be the amusement, "Hearts" is a good game, and there are so many articles in the shape of hearts which will make appropriate souvenirs and prizes. The dining room table may be covered with thin layers of cotton instead of a linen cover. At each place put a cotton snowball tied with ribbon, the name card tucked under the bow. Inside the ball put a tiny souvenir. The center-piece should be a jardiniere wrapped with cotton and filled with the kind of flowers that were used at the event of a year ago.

There should be a wedding cake containing a ring, piece of money and a thimble; all young people know the meaning of these symbols, and there will be a jolly time when the bride cuts the cake. Have the ice cream frozen in balls, tied with ribbons of spun sugar candy of the color used at the original wedding supper.

The gifts to be given the happy pair are, of course, limited to articles made from cotton. One little bride of a year rejoiced in a generous cotton crpe kimono and the groom in a pair of pajamas. These were given by the bridal party and were sent in a large packing box which was delivered during the party. Opening this box caused much merriment, as on each successive wrapping, there was written a clever little rhyme.

Your Fortune in Each Month. Here is a bit of astrological lore which may be of use to a hostess in amusing a crowd of young people. Ask the birth month of each; the following little table gives the answers. The entertaining feature of these so-called fortunes is in how far they generally are from the real characteristics of the person whom they are supposed to portray.

January—A maiden born in this month will be a prudent housekeeper, good tempered, but inclined to be melancholy.

February—Humane and affectionate; a tender parent.

March—A chatter box, dicky, stormy and of a quarrelsome nature.

April—Pretty, dainty, inconsistent and not studious.

May—Handsome in person, contented and happy in spirit.

June—Gay, impetuous and will marry early.

July—Fair to look on, but sulky in temper and jealous.

August—Amiable, practical and will make a wealthy marriage.

September—Discreet, affable and a favorite with every one.

October—Pretty, coquettish and oftentimes unhappy without a cause.

November—Liberal, kind and pleasant and thoughtful of others.

December—Well proportioned, gay, fond of novelty and inclined to be extravagant.

MADAME MERRI

Fashionable Eyebrows.

To-Day Liking Is for Delicately Pencilled Brows Rather Than Heavy Ones of Former Days.

Fashions in eyebrows change and the eyebrow of today is not the eyebrow of yesterday. The latest brow is delicate and slightly uplifted. There is in it the almost querulous expression which one notes in the portraits of the old-time beauties.

The worst eyebrows in the world from the standpoint of beauty are the heavy furry eyebrows. Yet there was a time when even these were considered pretty.

When queens reigned in Russia the big black eyebrow was the thing, and the beauties of those days used to pencil the brows heavily to make them dark and threatening. In those days it was considered a mark of aristocracy to have a heavy line running across the forehead—a heavy black furry line. Until very lately women pencilled their brows, and the eyebrow pencil is, of course, a necessity on the stage.

In private life it is considered objectionable. Nowadays a woman's eyebrows should be natural. They must be slightly curved, soft and fine, and the hair must be lustrous and satiny. They must not be too long nor must they be rough.

There is a beauty doctor in London who works upon the eyebrows without the electric needle. If they are too heavy or too long, too bushy over the eyes, or straggling, he pulls out the hairs with tweezers and immediately paints the spot with weak ammonia. It must be done carefully, because ammonia kills the hair.

Here are the latest eyebrow rules: The eyebrows should be lifted as high as possible without wrinkling the forehead.

The brows should be slightly darker than the hair, but should not be pencilled. It is allowable to stain them, but never to use the pencil.

Knitting the brows should be avoided; it is unbecoming. It makes the brows look heavy and ugly, and it makes wrinkles between the eyes and over the nose.

Concerning Gloves.

A Pretty Design for Evening Glove, Afternoon and Evening Lengths—White Ones in Fashion.

A PRETTY DESIGN.—One of the prettiest styles of elbow-gloves yet shown is delicately shaded at the top, an almost imperceptible mauve, with a slightly-embossed and indefinitely-traced pattern upon it of lilies of the valley or ivy leaves. Bas-relief patterns of the same indefinite and picturesque nature appear on the upper arm of white gloves, shaded a faint shell-pink or a faint sea-green.

STYLES TO WEAR.—Except for mourning wear, white gloves are worn upon all smart occasions. For evening wear the glove must rise beyond the elbow and meet the short evening sleeves more than half-way up to the shoulder. For day wear the gloves are slightly shorter, and need not rise higher than the elbow, for, although day gowns are worn with short sleeves this season, they are of necessity longer than those worn in the evening.

CLEANING WHITE KID.—You can clean white kid gloves at home by this process: Place the glove in a small basin, and pour over just enough benzoline to cover, set a plate over the basin, so as to prevent the spirit evaporation, and let the glove soak for five minutes. Have a thick cloth ready on the table and a piece of clean flannel, take the glove out of the basin, let it drip a little, set it on the cloth, and wipe it with the flannel, changing the surface constantly as it is soiled. The glove must not be rubbed too hard or the surface will be spoiled. When the glove is quite clean, blow into it to inflate it and hang in the shade in a draught.

Smart Afternoon Dress.

A Charming and Picturesque Costume This, One of the Prettiest That Have Appeared.

This is a very charming dress in Empire style; it has a plain, short bodice, to which the skirt is set in gathers. The foot is trimmed with three shaped flounces put on with curved ends terminating each side the center front.

The bolero is a little full on the bust, the fulness being gathered into the strap that goes all round the edge. It is ornamented with two buttons. From under the fronts of bolero come the fronts of a vest of broche fastened by buttons. The puffed elbow sleeves are finished by two hem-stitched cambric frills, and are ornamented with buttons.

Materials required for the dress: Eight yards 44 inches wide, one-half yard broad for vest, nine small buttons, eight larger size, two yards lining silk, six yards frilling.

THE PRESENT MODE.

INCLINED TO FRECKLE.

The best girl with freckles can hope to do is to keep them faded, that they do not show so much; she cannot remove them; if she take the skin of the new skin is soon very much worse than the old, being so tender that it is the more easily affected by the rays of light.

A very present help in keeping freckles faded out is to always wear a yellow veil; there is something in the chemical change in the rays passing through the yellow chiffon that keeps them from affecting the cuticle. And another help is to plaster her face with cold cream and powder beneath the veil when going into the light and heat out of doors in summer.

Then she should not wash with soap, but use the bran bags and almond meal instead. She should avoid the direct rays of the sun and also not go into a strong wind without protecting the skin, and she will find it better to wear a sunbonnet or a "poker" bonnet, with a veil closely tied down when out of doors.

Red Lips. The best way to bring color to your lips is to build up your general health and stimulate your circulation, so that the blood will go to your lips and cheeks.

Embroidered Grass Linen. Grass linen embroidered in Japanese style, both in white and blue, is among the prettiest drapery for the dining room table. Glass and china doilies to correspond.

INVENTOR OF VALENTINES.

Miss Esther Howland, of Worcester, Mass., who invented the modern valentine in 1816, never married, and died some ten years ago. The Springfield Republican recalls the fact that she was a graduate of Mount Holyoke seminary, and her father had a small bookstore and blunder. She sought to add a new feature to the business, and her method is thus described: Miss Howland took stiff letter paper, scalloped and fringed the edges, cut heart-shaped holes in the corners, glued colored pictures that came with valentines and tea and such things, on this, put borders of lace paper, that was used on the inside edges of fancy boxes then as today, around the pictures and hand-painted little verses on them.

The valentines found ready purchasers, and soon business men in New York and other cities began to order them for the next year. Four

C.M. PARK, EDITOR AND MANAGER

Davidson and Connor are forging ahead in the political race, and from present indications will distance the field at the September primaries.

Senator Spooner has introduced a bill giving General Bragg, late Consul General to China, a pension of seventy-five dollars per month during the remainder of his life.

General Bragg was a good soldier, for a short time commander of the famous Iron Brigade. Although wounded and physically disabled by his wounds the gallant man always declined to apply for a pension. And at this time, when he is old, when life is nearly spent, it is fitting that the government recognize his great services by this pension. We sincerely hope he may receive it.

Senator McGillivray said:

"We want a man for governor because he has ability to fill the office; one who will be in favor of running the state on business principles and cutting down expenses; one who will stand by the laboring class, farmers and business men of the state; one who will treat all classes fairly and courteously, and who will stand for the advancement of Wisconsin and its great industries. We want a governor who is an American citizen in the broadest and truest sense of the word."

We have found him. James O. Davidson, present governor of Wisconsin.

Hon. W. D. Connor replied to Senator McGillivray's letter requesting him to resign in a manner which showed that he knows how to wield the pen, and has the right kind of gray matter back of it.

He said he would willingly resign but to whom? That all the papers, lists, etc., are open to the candidates at all times and suggests that various state officials who are running for places on the ticket, submit their records and papers, and set the example by resigning their positions.

The letter was a candid, courteous expression from an upright, honorable man, one who would fill any important position to the honor of the state. We have no better material in the state than W. D. Connor of Marshfield.

IS BOSS RULE DEAD?

Senator LaFollette's friends are trying to make capital for his choice for governor by saying that he did not lose his right of suffrage when he became senator, and a whole lot of other twaddle.

No one claims he did lose his right to have a choice for governor. But he never has had the consistent right of engaging in state chamber proceedings to call a special session of the legislature, whereby his personal choice for governor, Mr. Leonard, might be chosen for the place. Neither had he the right, courteously considered, to wholly ignore Lieutenant Governor Davidson, president of the senate, while contemplating a special session of the legislature which was nearly a farce from beginning to end. Governor LaFollette conferred with Speaker Leonard, Assemblyman Dahl and Henry Johnson, and perhaps Secretary of State Houser, in regard to this special session, but ignored the president of the senate, wholly and completely. And who are Leonard, Dahl and Henry Johnson? Are they so superior to other men in the state, that others could not expect to be admitted to this conference? Are they above all others? Or was it for office? Let's see!

Leonard for governor, Dahl for state treasurer, Henry Johnson for the governor's member of the State board of Control. And Houser? If he were in the deal as he seems to have been, secretary of state for him.

The primary election law was passed to build the voters of Wisconsin. And in the face of this, these four or five men, who had worked so hard for the law, presumed to make a state chamber ticket.

Two street peddlers in Bradford, England, bought a horse for $11.25. It was killed by a motor car one day and the owner paid them $115 for the loss. Thereupon, a new industry sprang up on the roads of England.

chamber ticket, and then say to the voters "fell in." But the voters will not do it. And it will cost Senator LaFollette many thousand friends in the state if he persists in trying to force any special candidate on the people.

THE THREE R'S.

An exchange says there is talk of introducing the study of reading, writing and arithmetic into the public school again and eliminating water color painting, radio, bead and basket work and other high art occupations. There is a growing impression that a child who can read and do fractions is on the road to a better education than one who can make a basket that any half-bred squaw would be ashamed to own.—Elkhorn Independent.

Evidently the independent man is not in accord with present high methods, nor up in the change of the times. Radio has gone out and some other foolery has taken its place. Anything now a days that some mighty educator thinks of, some new scheme to cram and crowd and push the pupils through, regardless of whether they have an aptitude for it or not. Anything and everything to make a record for some principal or superintendent, so that he can go higher or get more salary.

Motherly Advice.

William Brookfield, the English churchman, said to tell this story: "The new bishop of New Zealand, in a farewell and pathetic interview with his mother after his appointment, was thus addressed by her in such sequence as sobs and tears would permit: 'I suppose they will eat you, my dear—I try to think otherwise, but I suppose they will. Well! We will leave it in the hands of Providence. But if they do—mind, my dear, and disagree with them.'"

Music in England.

Sir Edward Elgar, who is professor of music at Birmingham university, delivered the first of a series of public lectures there recently, and, dealing with English composers, contended that music was not helped so much as other arts. It was utterly hopeless for a young musician to expect to keep himself by writing serious music. He wanted to see larger concert rooms in towns where works could be produced at a small fee.

Heracles Drayman.

Michael Dendin, the largest man in Paris, who was known as the "king of the draymen," lately died from the effects of being knocked down by a street car. He was six feet six and three-quarters inches tall and weighed 292 pounds. His strength was so great that he could lift easily and carry a barrel containing a pipe (125 gallons) of wine.

Agriculture in Cape Colony.

Great efforts are being made in Cape Colony to introduce cooperative methods in agriculture. A letter has recently been addressed by the government cooperative expert to the secretaries of agricultural societies in the colony, suggesting the cooperative purchase of seeds, manures, implements and improved machinery.

Real Irish Whisky.

In a prosecution in London concerning the sale of alleged "Irish whisky," one of the witnesses, chairman of the Dublin county council, apparently called as an expert, testified that Irish whisky "should be made from Irish cereals, by Irishmen, in an Irish still in Ireland." Pot-still whisky is passed through charcoal.

Jollies.

High—So you have given up your high ambitions and are going to follow a routine life?
Jokes—Yes, I decided it would be long as you were on the top rung of the ladder of fame. I'm going to stay down with the push.—Detroit Free Press.

Fast Boats Wanted.

Several British shipbuilding firms have been asked by the admiralty to bid for an experimental torpedo boat destroyer, having a speed of 26 knots (41 1/2 miles) an hour. At the present moment the Velox, speed 25 1/2 knots, is the fastest boat in the British navy.

Workhouse Industry.

The inmates of the St. George's workhouse, Southwark, London, have made 11,661 useful articles of clothing during the last 12 months, while at the same time requiring some 600 articles. The industry saved the ratepayers a substantial sum of money.

Easy Money.

Two street peddlers in Bradford, England, bought a horse for $11.25. It was killed by a motor car one day and the owner paid them $115 for the loss. Thereupon, a new industry sprang up on the roads of England.

Fault in Statue.

Thoregrett's statue of Gladstone, recently erected in London, shows four fingers on the figure's left hand. Mr. Gladstone, however, lost the first finger of that hand while shooting at Hawarden on September 17, 1842.

Revolution Daughter.

Mrs. John F. Spencer, living in Marion county, South Carolina, is a living daughter of a revolutionary soldier, Capt. Stephen Godbold, one of Marion's men, and was born on October 24, 1832.

Unique Event.

When about to be married, a young woman in Westphalia discovered that her birth had never been registered, and so her birth and marriage were announced simultaneously.

Bride at Right.

In Jewish marriages the bride always stands at the right hand of the groom. With every other nation of the world her place in the ceremony is at the left.

Worst of Follies.

Dickenson—Lost an election bet, have you? I suppose it was one of those freak bets.

Tomwalker—Yes; it was the most blithe one I ever made. I bet cash this time.—Chicago Tribune.

The Reformer.

"In order to be a 'sho' and reformer," said Uncle Eben, "a man must be a office seeker. As if he gets to be a 'sho' and office seeker, dar' an' much chance of his bein' a reformer."—Washington Star.

Valuable Orchid.

Two offers of $2,500 are said to have been refused for a specimen of a new orchid, the odontoglossum vuytsteke, shown at the fortnightly exhibition of the Royal Horticultural society in Westminster hall.

London and New York Stocks.

Of stock market securities over $25,000,000,000 on their face value are quoted on the London stock exchange as against a little over $15,000,000,000 listed on the New York stock exchange.

The Losing Side.

McJigger—Say, what is the reverse side of a coin, say what?
Thingumbob—it depends. If you call "heads," for instance, the reverse side is "tails," of course.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Photographic.

Mrs. Johnson—De baby am de put-ter image ob his father.
Mrs. Mokeby—Yeah; he's a regular carbon copy.—Puck.
"Banning" All Right.
Mrs. Backwoods—Gee Henry's doin' real well in town. He's runnin' a hotel now, an' it's a big one, too.
"He surely is. Got a letter from him this mornin' an' he sez: 'I'm a hotel runner now, an' it's a real swell place.'"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Pretty Icelandic Custom.

In Iceland, that country of gentle and old-fashioned customs, it has always been the fashion to present to the baby when its first tooth appeared a lamb, to be its very own, cared for and tended as no other pet could be, and never to be parted with.

Criticism.

"Now, 'Little Sunshine,' the heroine of my play," said the dramatist, "is the daughter of an illicit distiller." "In that case," remarked the course manager, "you'd better call her 'Little Moonshine.'"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WHEN YOU GRADUATE WHAT THEN?

JUNE is a month of roses, also a month of graduates. Sometimes the rose crop fails, but the memory of man goeth not back to the time when the crop of graduates failed. Thousands of bright, ambitious young men and women graduate from our public schools every year. What becomes of them? Perhaps you are one of them. If so, what are you going to do?

WHAT HAS THE FUTURE IN STORE FOR YOU?

Graduating from high school is merely a stepping stone to success—the first chapter in your life. What is the second to be? What can you make of the education you have gained? Without special application it is, practically, worthless. Without special preparation you can apply it to nothing that is worth while. Can you now afford to accept a cheap clerkship, teach a country school, or peddle books? We think not. This is a business age, a golden age, an age of wonderful opportunities for wealth, honor and power. Many of the greatest industries the world has ever known are hampered and held back for the want of SKILLED HANDS AND EDUCATED BRAINS. Not brains mouldy with education centuries old, brains that team with practical ideas, that can anticipate the demands of the business world, that grasp and understand the problem of the ordinary affairs of life and can meet the requirements of every day business. The demand for young men and women possessing such requirements is and always will be, in excess of the supply.

THE BUSINESS WORLD DEMANDS YOUR SERVICES.

We have prepared thousands of young men and women to fill positions of profit and trust and, when prepared, we have secured positions for them. That which we have done for others we now offer to do for you, and that which others have done, you also can do.

WE GUARANTEE POSITIONS TO ALL WHO EXCEL.

If you are ambitious to succeed, send for our catalog. It contains the portraits of nearly one thousand bright young men and women who are now earning from $500 to $2,000 per year. Before we prepared them for business, they were no more competent to fill a high grade position than you now are. Our catalog also contains letters from these young people, and from the men who employ them, and the letters explain fully why Toland's Graduates Succeed Where Others Fail.
